I also talked about the working system being adopted by the AIOU the courses and other programmes being offered by the university through Distance Education System. Rai Dynasty ruled over Sindh for 143 years from 499 AD up to 642 AD. The founder of Sassanids of Persia was Ardshir Babagan who ruled from 226 AD to 241 AD. This includes the details of all aspects of these arts including pattern motifs and general principle. Why is it so I have never seen this system anywhere in the Muslim Society or even in Pakistan." I then explained to him the cultural values of Sindhi society and other aspects of its culture. A. Books of Science, Arts, Fiction, Social sciences & many more. We exchanged our views. Sindh is a province of Pakistan essentially the Indus Delta country. In reply to their questions I used to give them brief lecture and as always the last question was about a suggestion to write a book in which all information was stored comprehensively. During Ashoka's reign Sindh was influenced by Buddhism. Language is the mode of communication literature is a medium of expression of our daily life and culture. For instance chapter 4 is about Sindhi society and Sindhi culture. The local rudiments of Sindhi culture can be found in the civilisation represented by the ancient site of Mohen-jo- Daro dating back to the third millennium BC." The geographical topography of various parts is not the same the lifestyle differs from place to place; customs traditions languages costumes all vary from each other. To facilitate readers it has been subtitled appropriately. It deals with the vast expanse of Indus Valley Civilisation as evident from its centres at Amri Mehrgarh Kot Dijji Mohen-jo-Daro and other archaeological sites in Sindh Harappa and Kutch Gujarat and Har-iana states in India. One can reasonably feel that dancing in Sindh eventually has become a part of folk music for the purpose of intensive expression of sentiments of human life. They give new ideas thoughts and inspiration to their readers through their writings. There is some evidence that the Abhirs living to the east of the lower Indus Valley during this period acknowledged the sway of the Sassanids when Shapur-II besieged Amida on Tigris in 360 AD. It consists of few chapters. Sindhi Path Mala 1 by Institute of Sindhology, Adipur, Gujarat, India Sindhi Path Mala 3 by Institute of Sindhology, Adipur, Gujarat, India Byline: Dr. G. He himself belonged to the Punjab. The last chapter deals with Sindhian arts and crafts. Thus the people living in Sindh are by and large a race by themselves denoting that Sindhi society has been a mixed society from pre-historic times to the present day. My special gratitude to my sister Mrs. Dancing in Sindh has been witnessed since the Vedic age. He then passed through the deltaic town of Patala and proceeded south to the castle of Barbarikan from where he left for Babylon by land. Like the people of other countries people of Sindh are also happy and pleasure loving. As an old civilisation Sindh too had cults irrespective of the race and religion. This chapter also contains a list of names and kinds of musical instruments. Nearly two centuries later Le in 326 BC Alexander the Great captured the Indus Valley. The death of Alexander brought Sindh under the dominion of Chandra-gupta Maurya (325 BC) to be succeeded by Ashoka. It is for the first time that Ginans have been introduced as devotional hymns which are recited at different times of the day by the followers of Nizari Isma'ili followers according to the melodies of local Surs/modes. I would like to conclude with two paragraphs reproduced from the foreword written by my American friend Dr. Louis Flam who said: "To see the richness of Sindhi culture one only has to visit Sindh to be made aware of the diversity and beauty of its people and their language literature arts and crafts music and social customs. have also been mentioned. In the words of Dr 'Louis' Flam: "One only has to visit Sindh to be made aware of the diversity and beauty of her peoples and their language literature arts and crafts music and social customs. Much has been included into the pages to follow on this subject. It is an example of various influences which have made it a crucible of a variety of cultures that inter-acted with it. Another thing which I noticed in this drama is that whenever a visitor poor or rich comes to the Wadera he first pays respects with both hands folded and then shakes hands with him. This is actually the labour of my love with Sindh and its people. They have in them rhymes of divine love and its importance in reaching the doors of salvation. It is a treasure not only from the archaeological point of view but termed as so by the scholars who are interested in history culture linguistics and anthropology. Chapter nine is on music and folk dances of Sindh. He had aid of army of Indian elephants and of urban troops. It is quite interesting for the students and scholars alike for it is the first time the mythological aspects Sindhi culture and Sindhi society have been explained. They are fond of listening music folk songs folklore epics devotional hymns and poems and they enjoy every kind of sports and folk dances. Many races came here in different positions. According to Persian traditions Sindh is actually gifted by its Indian (local) overlord to Bahram V better known as Bahram Gur who ruled Persia from 420 AD to 440 AD. From the 3rd century to 5th century AD Sindh remained under the political supremacy of Sassanid Persia. The men of letters modernise the language and keep it alive by constant borrowing from other living languages. This is how I conceived the idea of writing a book giving a brief of Sindhi culture its history people arts and crafts their way of life their customs and traditions Sindhi language and literature religion rites and rituals etc. Richard Burton notes in his book: "The Muhanas though they keep up regular mosques and places of worship with Pirs Mullas and all the centres of devotion but the River Indus is adored by them under the name 'Khawaja Khizr' and is periodically propitiated by offering rice in earthen pots covered with cloth." Like universal inhibition superstitions too do form part of human psychic in the Indus Valley. It is a very interesting subject which needs an indepth study. They are composed in different musical modes and thus meant to be recited by the followers / devotees for the enrichment of their souls. Thus the foundation stone of Muslim rule and Muslim culture was laid in the subcontinent. Language is a very important symbol of any culture. Cults are essential aspects of life. His inquisitive-ness very deep and said: "Excuse me Dr. Allana permit me if I ask you a few questions about some aspects of Sindhi culture which have been shown in Mr. Abdul Qadir Junejo's drama 'Deewarein'. However mythology has also played its role in Sindhi society in naming persons of all kinds. Following the Civilisation of Mohen-Jo-Daro (2300 BC- 1750 BC) there is a proof of a great settlement in this valley. Ashoka was followed by Indo-Greeks Parthians (3rd-2nd century BC) and the Scythians and the Kushans (100 BC-300 AD). Apparently a general of the Pakistan Army was sitting beside me. Whether at home or abroad they desire to be identified as Pakistanis but for quite some time it has been debated that what Pakistani culture is This question again entails detailed discussion but the simple reply is that Pakistani culture exists in various forms. Through out the centuries Sindh has offered its hospitality to a succession of races but no stock has survived in its pure form. In this chapter not only the brief history of music and folk dances of Sindh is given but various categories of Sindhi music have also been explained. It has been said that it is one of the richest cultures in the world and it can truly lay claim as such. They have rendered a great service to both literature and language. Historically to rudiments of Sindhi culture can be found in the civilisation represented by the ancient site of Mohen-jo-Daro. Language is primary mode of communication of thoughts and feelings. The land of Sindh has shared great migrations from pre-historic times. It has derived its name from Sindhu River which is its lifeline from times immemorial. C.P Saintryasa great folklorist in his work 'Manuel Du Folk Lore' 1933 remarked: "Folklore is a study of traditions and for this reason its first task is to collect and classify the facts that make up tradition after this it must explain their nature and traditional essence. Language affects literature and the literature of any language affects life of a nation. Allana I have travelled almost half of the world. The subject is ofcourse enormous and would take volumes to discuss every aspect in detail. Folk tradition cannot be compared with buried treasure. It was probably associated with fertility cult. It was followed by some more dis-cussion about Sindh its history Sindhi language and Sindhi culture. Excavations at Bhambore have brought to light the Scythian race confirming their hold on the coastline of Sindh. "Let us preserve collect and dis- seminate their work let us learn from them let their art which is as permanent as nature and as continuous as history becomes a part of our own living soul." Chapter six is about the origin ancestry and history of Sindhi language and literature. Sindh as a matter of fact is a region of diverse cultural influences though the cultures every other influence arrived in Sindh has not only been received but their characteristics made Sindhi culture different from the rest. Language and lit- erature are very closely related to each other. There are some taboos too even in naming their children. The ruler of Rai Dynasty Rai Sahasi-I the son of Rai Seharas drove Iranians from Sindh and expanded his dominion up to Kirman in the Iranian land. Men of letters develop their language. Keeping in view the requirements of the readers various characteristics of Sindhi society have been discussed in this chapter. I am grateful to Mr. Shams Jafri Secretary Department of Culture and Tourism to allow my book published as decided by Ms. Rashidi and to Mr. Manzoor Ahmed Kansaro former Director Culture whose efforts too contributed this book's completions. Mahtab Akbar Rashdi former secretary Culture and Tourism Department who took special interests in getting this work done. This is a composite phenomenon entirely peculiar to this region.
